WALLPAPERS of BEAUTY and CHARM

WALLPAPER as a wall decoration was never so much in favour as it is to-day. The reason for its popularity is that never were wallpaper patterns so alluring and in keeping with the trend of fashion.

This sample book contains a selection of new wallpapers, suitable for every requirement, and marked at most attractive prices. The patterns and colourings are in the latest vogue and even the lowest priced papers have a decorative value far beyond their cost.

All the papers shown in this book are SEMI-TRIMMED. The selvage can be removed either before or after pasting the strip, without the need of scissors or straight edge.

Let us recommend to your use the papers marked SUNWORTHY. These papers are printed with special high grade colours so will retain their brightness and charm under most exacting conditions.

A CEILING PAPER can be supplied to match each sample. This should invariably be in keeping with the quality of the sidewall paper with which it is used.

What a fine paper is here presented for use in a rangy hall and other lower rooms of large dimensions. The inmates of a home so decorated will rejoice in its company; visitors to such a dwelling will appreciate its cordial welcome. No addition to the furnishing of a room at double the cost could possibly give as much satisfaction as will this beautiful wallpaper. The 2 $\frac{1}{4}$ -inch banding, No. 19 on the illustrated sheet, is colored in appropriate rich tones.

A "stucco" effect in truth, yet far more decorative and interesting than plaster. The pattern in subdued tones wanders across the walls, lending charm and novelty to the decoration without in the least interfering with its suitability as a background for pictures and furniture as well as the occupants of the room themselves. The color, too, is full of sunshine and warmth. The band-border, $2\frac{1}{4}$ inches wide and shown as No. 19, is brought out in quite bright tones.

One cannot go wrong in selecting this beautiful paper for down-stair room or hall. Its bright color-tones will bring sunshine into what before may have been a gloomy corner. The ground itself, too, is just the right depth of tone to make cheery surroundings. For a decoration in the newer vogue it will be hard to find its match. The $2\frac{1}{4}$ -inch banding is No. 19 on the illustrated sheet.

Brown is a color that is restful and becoming to the room where the mind is employed more, perhaps, than to one where social duties are undertaken. The doctor's office, the library, the quiet retiring room will all welcome such a restrained type of coloring. Yet there are other uses that it can share such as when durability has to be taken into account. The pattern is entirely in the modern school and is a splendid example of the new cult. The 2 $\frac{1}{4}$ -inch banding, No. 19 on the illustrated sheet, is quite in keeping.

Such a beautiful paper as this with its scattered flowers and wandering butterflies is a welcome adjunct to any home. The pearly ground in iridescent shades helps to complete a creation that not only has behind it a full measure of technical skill but also possesses novelty and decorative beauty that will bring a room to the zenith of attractiveness. The 3-inch banding, No. 21, has an increase in its color-values yet provides a finish that is completely satisfying.

Richly Chromatic will describe the coloring of this beautiful paper which comes under the classification of what are known as "Brocades". A "Brocade" is a silk material variegated with gold and silver, and these papers, into the coloring of which a variety of shades of bronze are introduced, simulate the woven material and are given the same name. For the lower rooms or hall no better decoration can be offered if a rich, colorful effect is desired. The $3\frac{1}{4}$ -inch banding, No. 22, is in perfect harmony with the hanging.

Of course this suggestion does not in any way restrict the use of this excellent pattern, but if the plastered surface of the walls is broken or rough here is a splendid opportunity of concealing such unevenness. But this paper may be used with good effect in any hall or down-stair room, especially if hard usage is expected as sometimes it is when the family is large and the younger members full of vitality and fun. The 2¼-inch banding in bright colors, No. 19, provides an excellent finishing touch.

Cool, dainty, interesting is this quite modernistic pattern. Perhaps it's the summer cottage or the parlor in the country house, perhaps it's the guest room or the room of the lady of the house, it may be the room of one of the younger members of the household that you wish to renovate. Whatever room it is, it is desirable to have it appear bright, cool, winsome and up to date. Here's your paper—SUNWORTHY, too! The 7-inch styling border No. 18 may be used to enhance the decoration by means of panelling or, again, one edge only may be employed at the ceiling angle. See illustration "Panelling Made Easy."

Variety is surely the spice of life, especially where wallpaper is concerned. There is no modesty of coloring about this beautiful paper. It boldly calls attention to itself by its bright, clear tones and proclaims its suitability for your down-stair rooms with its modern delineation and technical perfection. It will make just the kind of surrounding that psychologists and health specialists recommend as nourishment for vigorous minds and healthful bodies. The 2-inch banding harmonizes with the sidewall and will be seen as No. 14 on the illustrated sheet.

Subdued in its entire composition is this useful SUNWORTHY Wallpaper. Yet how much more decorative and altogether enjoyable is such a paper in comparison to absolutely plain walls. Even such a subdued coloring brings a tang of the out-doors within the home with its branching foliage, occasional blossom and touches of glistening bronze. The 2-inch banding is No. 12 on the illustrated sheet.

To make a home bright and summery, especially in winter time, is a consummation devoutly to be wished. Such a paper as this with its wandering sprays of bright blossoms will form a charming environment for the bedroom or down-stair room where a light treatment of the walls is required. The novel dappled ground makes a pleasing setting for the top pattern and helps to create an air of warmth. The 2½-inch banding, No. 17, is colored in somewhat fuller tones than the sidewall.

To decorate a room of your home with this beautiful pattern, the last word in the designer's creative powers, is like paying a bonus on your future contentment. It is sure to please. Neither too vivacious or highly colored it possesses just enough style and novelty to create the greatest amount of interest on the home walls. It has the additional advantage of being SUN-WORTHY. The narrow 2½-inch banding, No. 19, completes the ensemble.

For a real homey appearance it is hard to beat a fabric ground such as this paper represents, with an easy flowing pattern printed thereon. The pattern here shown is wonderfully suited to the type of finish that the paper follows. It will be found ideal for living room or dining room as well as for the hall. The 9-inch panelling banding is No. 20 on the illustrated sheet. It can be either used to panel the walls or as a narrow banding at the ceiling angle, using one side only of the outer edging.

You cannot long inspect a sample book of wallpapers before coming to a pattern that traces its origin back to the Flowery Kingdom. The Japanese have an art all their own—light, interesting, full of life. In truth, just what we need for our Canadian homes. Here is an excellent example of such borrowed art. For any room in which a dainty paper in quiet coloring is desirable, this pattern will surely hit the mark. It is SUNWORTHY. The 2-inch banding will be seen as No. 6 on the illustrated sheet.

The background of this paper of the modern school of design is quite a realistic reproduction of hand-tooled plaster. But how much more decorative than actual plaster it is, how much more sanitary and how easily changed when fashions alter and an entirely different type of wall covering is desired! The beige coloring of the ground is just what popular taste delights in. The banding, in more vivid tones, is $2\frac{1}{4}$ inches wide and will be seen illustrated as No. 19.

That restful living room and library, the inviting dining room or what have you? Here's a paper that will give the desired effect. It is modernistic in its origin and colored in warm, subdued shades that are entirely to one's liking. There is a novel back-print, too, that does not show up to advantage in a small sample but that adds materially to the decorative beauty of the paper. The panelling border, 7 inches in width and No. 11 on the illustrated sheet, is harmoniously colored. See illustration "Panelling Made Easy."

Now for your guest-room or dainty parlor! In most delicate shades, yet easy to furnish and drape too, is this beautiful SUNWORTHY paper. The pattern is right in the most stylish vogue of the day. Perhaps it should be seen in the roll in order that its full beauty may be revealed. The panelling border, No. 18, too, will add lustre to the decoration and is most simple in application. A novel conceit is the back-print that emphasizes the decorative effect of this quaint design. People are getting away from the hard and fast rules of the past. They no longer submit to a "follow-my-leader" mode of living. So their individuality eschews the common-place in their home surroundings. Such papers as this will suit their fancy. The banding complies with the hanging both in coloring and design. It is 2 inches in width and shown as No. 14 on the illustrated sheet.

Modern art, brought to the full power of its attractiveness, is represented in this beautiful low-priced creation. All who enter a room so decorated will be impressed with the excellent taste shown by the one responsible for the selection for her walls. The warm grey background acts as a happy contrast to the colorful flowers. The panelling border, No. 13, is of quite the newest type of pattern and will complete a decoration that will give pleasure and satisfaction wherever used. See illustration "Panelling Made Easy."

A pattern of great decorative value and one that could readily be sold at a far higher price is shown in this handsome paper for the down-stair rooms or hall. Its very coloring denotes richness and sociability, and its use in the home will prove most satisfactory to all the inmates. Then, too, the paper will receive additional effectiveness if the walls are panelled with the styling border—No. 15 on the illustrated sheet. See illustration "Panelling Made Easy."

Something entirely new for your upper room in both coloring and finish. The little floral spray of the overprint softens the colors of the principal motif of the pattern and bestows a charm that is all its own. The soft pink coloring, too, is in itself unfamiliar and will make a delightful background for draperies and furniture. The $2\frac{1}{2}$ -inch banding, No. 7, harmonizes with the sidewall in both finish and coloring.

Let this dainty paper in one of the most favored types of to-day's designs introduce itself to your attention. It will produce a room that is away from the commonplace and that will have character all its own. Note how the brushed treatment of the flowers relieves the rigid outline of the pattern giving it a resemblance to a silken fabric. The 3-inch banding, No. 21 on the illustrated sheet, is quite original in its delineation and makes a pretty finish for the delicate sidewall.

Not everyone wants to live amidst brilliant color even when we are passing through an age of color. The soft tones of this paper make a restful background which is relieved by a dash of warmth in flowers and foliage. Then, too, a styling-border, No. 13, is provided by means of which the walls may be given a panel treatment without the necessity of any great technical skill. See illustration "Panelling Made Easy."

You will like this entirely new effect on one of your up-stair rooms, or, perhaps the sitting-room. The ecru ground is warm and easy to live with and makes an agreeable foil for the loose sprays of conventional flowers. The gilt horizontal and vertical lines add a touch of modernism that is most pleasing. The narrow banding, $2\frac{1}{4}$ inches in width and illustration No. 6, makes a neat finish.

Here we have a low-priced paper which represents a "brocatelle" effect of wonderful decorative value. The coloring of shaded brown and blue has earned unprecedented popularity. It is restful, yet full of movement, it creates a formal atmosphere, yet it is unobtrusive. The 4-inch band-border, No. 11 on the illustrated sheet, brings a contrasting note of damson shades in both flowers and foliage.

A student of design might trace this exquisite pattern to the master-decorators of the Orient. However that might be, a modernistic touch is palpably evident in the background in faint shades of varying hues. One bedroom in the home should have a style all its own. Here's the paper that will turn the trick to a nicety. The 3-inch cut-out border, No. 10, is in bright tones against a filling of black.

Perhaps you would prefer more color than is represented in a rendering of the same pattern shown elsewhere. If so, here's the one to suit your fancy. Color, you know, is all the rage according to fashion's latest whim. It promotes good cheer and healthful vigor and is welcomed by everyone of good taste and sound judgment. The 2 $\frac{1}{2}$ -inch banding, No. 7, perfectly harmonizes with the hanging.

A touch of orange—just a touch, no more—cheers and enlivens as no other color is capable. Here we have it in the floral spray with cool blues to counter-balance its warmth. The beige ground is a fitting shade for such a pleasing combination of colors in the pattern itself. The 3-inch banding, No. 8 on the illustrated sheet, is of novel design and reflects all the colors of the sidewall.

Those narrow cross lines which so characteristically connect the sprays of flowers denote "modernism" in one of its simpler and more restful phases. A passing butterfly here and there bestows a note of lightness and carefree charm. Just the paper for the room of the debutante or for that of the lassie not yet through her school or college course. The 21½-inch banding, No. 7, adds a joyous note to the decoration.

A loosely spreading design in bright, clear colors will prove an ideal paper for that rangy hall and family sized living room or dining room. It is marked at a remarkably low figure when its decorative value is considered. The brightly colored banding—4 inches wide and No. 2 on the illustrated sheet—is just what the paper requires as a finish at the ceiling angle.

Where is there one who has charge of a house who does not desire "daintiness" in her bed chambers. Here, then, is just the pattern to charm the most fastidious. The modernistic touch will not come amiss with those who look for the newest styles in their homes, and who does not? The $2\frac{1}{2}$ -inch banding, No. 7 is snappily colored to contrast with the subdued tones of the hanging.

The Japanese influence of design is clearly discernable in this low priced pattern. Then, too, the background gives the effect of grass-cloth, a Japanese product which has long been used for the covering of interior wall surfaces. The accompanying banding is $3\frac{1}{2}$ inches wide and is shown in No. 5 on the illustrated sheet. This paper will be found acceptable for any down-stair room or hall.

A gaily colored floral pattern with its mesh back-print of grey and mica threads will bring an air of summer days to the room it adorns. Look!—there are wee songsters, too, in their bright plumage flitting amidst the branches. The 3-inch banding, No. 1, completes the decoration.

This gay little floral pattern, with its corduroy back-print, will be welcomed in the up-stairs or attic room if cost must be restricted. It is surely a bargain at the figure at which it is marked. The dainty 3-inch banding, No. 1 on the illustrated sheet, should always be employed at the ceiling angle to procure the best effect.

A panelled arrangement by means of a styling border.

Panelling Made Easy

This shows how the strips are mitred at top and bottom

The dignity and charm of a panelled room.

For straight panel work, cut border as shown here and apply over the wallpaper after it has been hung, as shown above.

The Finished Room

The vogue for panelled rooms is winning universal popularity. By means of the styling border, in which the centre strip, called the "style," and the bandings on either side come united and are applied to the wall in one operation, this graceful type of decoration is easily and quickly accomplished. A number of the papers shown in this sample book have beautiful styling borders which accurately match them.

For panel work in corner, cut one decorated edge off each vertical strip of styling border, butting the two plain edges as shown above.

How to Hang Semi-Trimmed Wallpaper

HELPFUL INSTRUCTIONS FOR HOME DECORATORS TO AID THEM IN BEAUTIFYING THEIR ROOMS

Recipe for Paste—Use a good grade of rye or wheat flour, mix thoroughly to the consistency of a stiff batter with cold water. Be sure to get out all the lumps. Then pour on boiling water, stirring rapidly until the flour is thoroughly cooked. Allow this to cool and thin to consistency wanted with cold water.

There are a number of dry powdered pastes on the market, many of which will prove quite satisfactory, and will save time and labor in preparation.

Recipe for Sizing—Dissolve one pound of good ground glue to a pail of hot water. Stir and use while warm.

Recipe for Pearlash—Dissolve one-half pound of washing soda or sal soda in one gallon of water. Apply to painted wall before sizing.

PREPARATION OF WALLS

Old walls, if previously papered, should be gone over with lukewarm water applied with a paste brush. Allow this to soak thoroughly and remove old paper with a scraping knife. When the walls are dry, rub them down with sandpaper and give a coating of sizing.

1. Open roll by slitting knife under sealing bands.

2. Tear off the few inches that are covered by the sealing bands.

3. Give the ends of roll a rap on table or floor first on one side then on the other, and the selvages come off, leaving a perfect matching edge.

Painted walls should be treated with pearlash, and when dry rubbed down with sandpaper and then given a coating of sizing.

Kalsomined or white-washed walls should be washed thoroughly, then sized. If washing will not remove the old kalsomine, the walls must be scraped.

All cracks in plaster should be filled in with Plaster-of-Paris before papering.

GENERAL RULES FOR HANGING SEMI-TRIMMED WALLPAPER

The above illustrations depict how "Semi-Trimmed" Papers should be treated, after which they may be pasted and hung just like any other papers.

Note—Many people when hanging semi-trimmed wallpaper prefer to leave the selvage attached until after the paper is pasted and folded. This prevents the possibility of getting paste either on the under strip or on the printed surface of the strip that is being pasted. The pasting softens the strands that attach the selvage to the printed paper so that these may be readily pinched off.

Cutting the Strips—Cut the length of ceiling strips long enough to allow about two inches to come down on the walls at each end.

For sidewall strips, measure the height of the walls to ascertain the length of strip required, and if a border or banding is used at the top of the wall and above the baseboard, allow an inch or two inches less than the width of the border. If a cut-out border is used, be sure to calculate the width from the narrowest part. Measure off a strip of paper allowing sufficient for matching, and cut it at the top so that the important feature of the design will come at the right distance from the bottom edge of the border. Then cut up the entire roll, being careful to cut so that each strip will match correctly when it is hung. Now turn the strips face down on the table preparatory to pasting.

Pasting—Begin pasting at the middle of the strip and paste towards one end, brushing the paste well from the centre to the outside edges and distributing it evenly on the surface of the paper. When finished, bring the pasted end over to the centre, face up. Paste the other end of strip and fold over in the same way.

Hanging Ceiling Papers—If the ceiling is not true, snap a chalk line on the ceiling about 18 inches from the wall, and use this line as a guide for the first strip, allowing the paper to run down on the wall about two inches. Also let the paper run down on the wall about two inches at the ends of each strip. A good plan is for the paperhanger to hold in one hand a roll of paper in front of him, over which the loose end of the pasted strip is laid, while he walks along the scaffold and brushes the paper to the ceiling with a smoothing brush or a cloth, being careful to match the paper accurately as he proceeds. If the strips are long and cumbersome, a helper may render assistance by holding up the loose end of the pasted strip by means of a broom, over which is fastened a clean cloth to keep it from soiling the damp paper.

Hanging Sidewall Paper—First strike a vertical line with the plumb and chalk-line, and hang the first strip to this line, thus insuring the pattern being straight. Using the first strip as a guide, hang other strips until the room is completed. Trim the edges with the seam-roller in order to make them join perfectly. With heavy varnished papers and those liable to injury by pressure, the edges should not be rolled.
